SEIZURE OF MINES IN STRIKE AREA BY THE PRESIDENT WOULD BE AUTHORIZED BY SENATE RESOLUTION IN EVENT OF REAL EMERGENCY

BUCKEYE STATESMEN TOE THE MARK WITH NATION IN SUSPENSE

As Ohio Goes, So Nation
Votes Is Recalled On Eve
Of Campaign

TEN CANDIDATES OUT

CLEVELAND, June 9.—With several favorites scratched, but with a couple of added starters, as the sporting editor would say, Ohio voters of the two major political parties are today watching the start of a race which will end only with the statewide primaries on August eighth, and which are preliminary to the general election in November, which may determine in large measure the fate of the administration of President Harding in the election two years hence.

While state issues will be stressed by candidates for the governorship, Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, of Cleveland, in his announcement has strongly emphasized the national aspect of the campaign, and the fact that United States Senator Atlee Pomerene, of Canton, running for his third term, is considered a likely opponent of President Harding should he again be elected, has brought national issues to the fore.

Entered in the Republican race for governor today are: Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, of Cleveland; Senator Arthur H. Day, of Cleveland; Secretary of State Harvey C. Smith, of Zanesville; Speaker Rupert R. Beets, of Cadiz; C. Homer Durand, of Coshocton; Congressman Charles L. Knight, of Akron; Harry Clay Smith, of Cleveland, colored editor.

Upon the Democratic side: Former Auditor A. V. Donahay, of New Philadelphia; Judge James G. Johnson, of the state supreme court; and Thomas J. Duffy, of East Liverpool, chairman of the state industrial commission, have formally filed declaration of candidacy.

For the nomination for U. S. Senator Congressman Simeon D. Fess, of Yellow Springs; former Senator Charles F. Dick, of Akron, and former Lieut. Gov. John H. Arnold, of Columbus, are entered, while thus far Senator Atlee Pomerene has the Democratic field to himself, and it is not that likely there will be anyone found willing to oppose him in the primary. Walter F. Brown, of Toledo, may yet enter in the Republican race, although the general belief is that he will let Fess fight it out against the field.

THREE MORE SUITS FILED IN PROTEST AGAINST ROAD COST

Three more suits asking for a reversal of the assessments made to pay for the improvement of the inter-county highway from Randles bridge to Conesville were filed in common pleas court Friday.

Thurza Heck, Lina Davis and Edward Mooney and others, were named as plaintiffs in the three actions, respectively.

In each case it is stated that the assessments exceeds the benefits derived by the property owners against whom the assessment is made.

The Heck farm consists of 42½ acres and has been assessed in the amount of $637.81, according to the petition. An assessment of $1,724.94 has been placed against the Davis farm of 144.35 acres, and the assessment against the Mooney farm of 341 acres amounts to $3,478.08.

Two similar suits were filed earlier in the week by Sarah H. Wilson and Melville Powellson.

The hearing of a test case filed by J. A. Duncan last week resulted in a reduction of the assessment to $6 an acre for the Duncan farm. It is estimated (Continued On Page Ten)

GHOST TO WALK SOON FOR COPS AND FIREMEN

Banks Expected To Honor Certificates; Employees To Get Two Months' Pay

Coshocton city firemen and police will get two months' back pay Saturday, if plans on foot Friday are successful. City Auditor W. H. Williams announced Friday.

A certificate of indebtedness covering the full amount has been ordered issued by the city council, and it is believed that the local banks will accept the certificate.

Other cities have been paying their safety department employees by issuing certificates of indebtedness, on a ruling of Attorney General Price.

The Coshocton banks held back, awaiting a decision from a case which was being heard in the supreme court at Youngstown. It has been learned that the Youngstown case questioned the legality of paying special police by the issuance of indebtedness certificates, and the decision will have no effect on regular employees.

The certificate which has been ordered issued will also cover the purchase of new solid rubber tires for the fire truck at Station 1, it was said Friday.

MAD DOG IS KILLED AT PLEASANT VALLEY HAD BITTEN HORSE

Police were called to Pleasant Valley Friday morning to get a mad dog, which, it was reported, had bitten a horse on the leg.

Officer George Freitag answered the call and found that the dog had been killed. He brot it to Coshocton, where its head was cut off and given to D. M. Criswell, county health commissioner. The dog's head will be sent to the state health department for examination.

A veterinarian was called to care for the horse that had been bitten. Proper treatment of dog bites and rabies and proper methods of handling dogs that have bitten human beings are outlined in a message from the state department of health just received by Health Commissioner Glenn E. Smith. It is pointed out that rabies is no more of a hot weather disease than it is a cold weather disease, and that summer heat, "dog days" and the "dog star" have nothing to do with its incidence.

Isolation of a dog that is suspected of rabies is the first step urged by the department of health. Observation for a week or 10 days should develop symptomatic evidence, and on this showing, the head should be cut off, packed in ice and shipped at once to the department laboratory. It should be sent by messenger.

Prompt cauterization of wounds caused by dog bites is the first step in the prevention of rabies, and if there is ground for suspicion of the disease, pasteur treatment should be begun at once, the statement advises.

Provision Of Proposed Act To Guarantee Sufficient Production To Mitigate Suffering Of Public In Future Strikes Would Shear Labor Of Power—Senators Believe In Safeguarding People And Navy— Situation Is Fast Becom- ing Acute

WASHINGTON, June 9.—A threat to invoke governmental intervention as a means of ending the coal tie-up was climaxed today by revelation that a movement is under way in the senate to enact a joint resolution authorizing the president to seize all mines in strike areas.

The proposed action is said to be gaining support from both Democrats and Republicans who declared they would favor this unprecedented remedy if pacific methods failed. The movement was launched by former progressives who recalled the sudden termination of the great bituminous strike of 1902 when President Roosevelt veiled summarily threatened to seize all mines. Introduction of the proposed resolution, it was learned authoritatively, has already been the subject of one conference of former progressives.

Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, declared today he was among the senators who had attended this conference. He said he was now considering the advisability of introducing a resolution to carry the proposed seizure into effect. A question of life and death is raised by this coal strike," said Norris.

"The American public will freeze next winter unless something is done very soon to end the strike. Besides this tremendous danger to human life, the strike is slowly paralyzing business and eventually will cripple our transportation systems. If no other remedy is offered to end this strike within a reasonable time, I will try to get a resolution passed to authorize the president to seize the mines thru the senate."

Senators representing the great industrial belts as well as members of the senate agricultural "bloc" announced they favored the seizure "as a last resort," few urged immediate action along this line with the possibility of permanent government control as an outcome of the strike.

While the seizure remedy was taking the spotlight in possible senate action, the senate labor committee was awaiting word from Secretary of Commerce Hoover as to the kind of legislation needed by the government to end the strike.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, chairman, announced he would call a meeting of the committee as soon as he received a reply from Hoover. It was reported the president would be adverse to any such precedent setting action. The tentative position of the agricultural "bloc" towards seizure legislation was suggested by Senator Capper, of Kansas, its chairman, in advocating "temporary government control" as a last resort.

"I would favor seizure by the government of an anthracite mine to supply the navy and seizure of bituminous mines to insure a supply for the people," said Senator Ladd, Republican of North Dakota, a member of the "bloc."

"I would vote to give the government authority to take over as many mines as necessary to insure a proper production," Senator Rawson, Republican of Iowa, who holds the seat of former Senator Kenyon, said. "I believe the government should take over enough mines to fill immediate needs of the public if the strike isn't settled at the end of the next month," said Senator Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin, an administration leader.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, declared he also would favor this drastic step if conciliatory methods failed to end the strike.

WILLS CREEK BRIDGE WILL BE COMPLETED WITHIN NINETY DAYS

The old wooden bridge which stands over Wills creek at Wills Creek, was sold at public auction Thursday afternoon to Elmer Small, who bid $250. By purchasing the bridge he contracts to remove it from its present site before July 20.

The contract for the construction of a new steel bridge to replace the wooden one was awarded the Columbus Sheet Metal Co. at a bid of $8,500. The new bridge will have a crescent block floor. The contract calls for the completion of the bridge within 90 days.

Work on it will be started immediately after the removal of the old bridge.

McCUMBER PLANS TO FORCE BONUS VOTE WITHIN TWO WEEKS

Three Schemes Are Laid To Get Tariff Out Of Way
Temporarily

OPPOSITION STRONG

Democratic Leaders Hope
To See McCumber's Plan
Come To Vote

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The $2,800,000 soldier bonus bill will be called upon for action in the senate within the next two weeks, it was announced today by Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, chairman of the finance committee of the senate.

With his committee's favorable report before the senate and the bonus officially listed on the calendar of future business, McCumber is confident of success in his efforts to get a decision on paying adjusted compensation to World war veterans.

Three parliamentary moves were open today by which the bonus advocates can get the tariff bill laid aside long enough to pass the bonus. These were:

1—A unanimous agreement;

2—A motion to adjourn, by which the bonus could be called up the following day during the regular "morning hour" of business, and

3—A motion to displace the tariff with the bonus. Strong opposition from Senators Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, and Underwood, Democrat, of Alabama, presaged defeat of the first move. The second move would require a majority vote for the senate. This could be counted upon, it was said, and will be McCumber's most likely move. The third plan, a vote to replace the tariff with the bonus, would be a test of the strength of bonus supporters prior to debate on the subject. Its passage will in effect be a vote for passage of the bonus bill itself. This move would not be attempted by McCumber except as a last resort.

"I think there is no question but that we will have enough support to insure its passage," McCumber said.

If the Republican chairman fails to force the bonus into debate, Democratic leaders will offer their own motion to take up the bill.

FEW PAY TAXES FOR YEAR IN DECEMBER, TREASURER SAYS

In spite of the fact that it is permissible to pay taxes for the whole year in December, the full payments made at that time are negligible, according to a report from the county treasurer's office.

It seems that the majority of tax payers figure that the interest on their tax for six months is more useful to themselves than to the county.

June tax receipts are increasing each week, Treasurer C. B. Bechtel announced Thursday. The June books were opened the first of April. During the first week the receipts were covered by three figures. Last week more than $5,000 was taken in. The entire county duplicate averages in the neighborhood of nine hundred thousand dollars, each year.

They have dressed alike since childhood, but no matter how badly their clothes may be mixed up at night they could always pick out their own garments in the morning.

GODLY HERO TAKES MEAN SLAP AT THE SECOND LIEUTENANT

CINCINNATI, June 9.—Sergeant Alvin York, the World war hero, denounced card playing and the theatres as "lures of the devil" in an address at a camp meeting under the auspices of God's Bible School here this morning.

"It's true people in the bible danced, but I don't believe they danced as they do today," the sergeant declared. "I never go to the theatre or motion picture shows and do not ever intend to."

"However, I'm only a private in God's army and not a second lieutenant so I don't intend to force my standards on anyone else," he concluded.

Petitions for nomination at the primaries August 8, must be filed before midnight Friday night.

C. O. Turner represents Mrs. Hafner in both cases.

CAMP MEETINGS ARE BEGUN AT ROSCOE GROUND

Prominent Speakers Lead Bethel Services; Weather Causes Poor Attendance

The attendance at the opening service of the Bethel camp meeting Thursday night on the Roscoe public school ground was small but gratifying, in view of the bad weather. The tent, which will seat eight hundred people, was more than one-third filled.

The Rev. C. W. Butler, dean of the Cleveland Bible Institute was present as scheduled and delivered an impressive message from the words, "This God is our God."

All the workers are present and the outlook for the camp is promising. The Rev. J. B. McBride, of Pasadena, Calif., delivered an interesting sermon at the grounds Friday morning. He is scheduled to preach this evening. The Rev. Mr. Butler was to have preached this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

SPANISH WAR VETS TO ATTEND STATE CONVENTION JUNE 12

A number of the Spanish-American War veterans of the local post, Eugene Snell Camp No. 80, are planning on attending the annual veterans' convention at Portsmouth, O., the week of June 12.

The S. A. W. veterans receive a special reduction in the railroad fare to Portsmouth during the week of the convention. The tickets are in charge of Charles Carpenter.

The national convention for the veterans will be held at Los Angeles, Calif., in August. The excursion rates will be the same as one fare for a round trip with the privileges of stop-overs.

Wednesday, June 14 is the anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as our national emblem by the Continental Congress, in 1777, in accordance with design furnished by Betsy Ross. The local post asks that all business places and homes display a flag in the open on that day. Citizens are requested to wear a small flag.

The local Camp will hold a smoker on June 28 and everyone who served in the war with Spain is invited to attend.

LABOR LEADERS SHOW WARINESS OF BIG STRIKE

Appeal To Harding For Protection Against Any Further Reductions

CLOUDS LESS DARK

Big Four Brotherhoods In Event Of Strike Could Not Be Depended Upon

CINCINNATI, June 9.—Railroad strike clouds lightened, appreciably in the last 24 hours, labor union officials here for the American Federation of Labor convention admitted today.

The possible strike situation took on a less menacing look as officers of the railway workers union began the task of drafting a petition to President Harding appealing to him to stave off further wage reductions from the railroad labor board.

The appeal to the nation's executive will be a minute declaration of alleged railroad employees' ills and when completed in about a week for submission to President Harding will embody scathing denunciation of the wage cuts of close to $110,000,000 recently determined upon by the board.

Decision will be asked of the presidents of the building trades departments are adequate to "maintain an American standard of living." A committee appointed by B. M. Jewell, president of the railroad employees' department of The American Federation of Labor, will incorporate in the letter statistical data, showing what the railroad men themselves believe to be a "living wage."

Every indication points to the fact that the railroad employees are approaching the matter of a possible strike with extreme wariness, labor leaders declare. While the strike votes have gone out to the 1,200,000 employees, railroad union officials are expected to caution against too hasty action. One of the reasons for this, it is said here, is that there would be little likelihood of the "big four," in the railroad union group, joining the "outside men" in a strike.

While this would not prevent a strike, its adverse moral effect, leaders say, would be harmful.

Further effort will be made today to pacify the organized carpenters and persuade them to return to the ranks of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, from which they defected over a year ago. Samuel Gompers, president of the Federation, will plead for an amicable settlement of the difficulties today.

BRIGHTWELL ADMITS POSSESSING STILL; FINED $500, COSTS

Otto Brightwell, who was arrested early Thursday morning to answer a charge of having in his possession, property designed for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor, pleaded guilty to the charge when arraigned before Mayor W. S. Tish today and was fined $500 and costs.

He was unable to pay the fine Friday, and is being held in the county jail. If he fails to make arrangements for the payment of his fine, he will probably be committed to the Stark-co workhouse.

A huge copper still belonging to Brightwell was found on the Hart farm Thursday morning.

PILES

Can't Be Cured from the Outside. External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Warner Arnold Co. and druggists everywhere, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

AKRON CITIZEN GAINS 15 POUNDS TAKING TANLAC

"I Don't Feel Like I Ever Had A Sick Day In My Life," Declares Inspector Miller

"Besides restoring my health, Tanlac actually built me up fifteen pounds in weight, and I now weigh more than I ever did in my life," said Earl R. Miller, 1144 Murray Ave., Akron, Ohio, head inspector for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

"I had a severe case of influenza, suffered a set back and was left in mighty bad shape. My appetite was so poor I could hardly bear the sight of food, and I could scarcely digest a thing that I managed to eat. I had terrible pains in my chest, and, in fact, just ached all over. I was so run down, I was very easy to take cold, just couldn't get my weight or strength back, and had to lose 'at least' a week from work."

"However, Tanlac has relieved me of all my troubles. I have been built up fifteen pounds in weight and I'm so strong and healthy I don't feel like I ever had a sick day in my life. I think Tanlac is the greatest medicine ever made."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

CALIFORNIA DOCTOR PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO MELODY OF BIRD

Physician Travels Thousands of Miles to Hear Notes Of Nightingale

LONDON, June 9.—Not even the most potted and pampered prima donna has ever had so great a compliment paid her voice as the compliment which Dr. Casey Wood, of California, has just paid to the common British nightingale. The doctor has just completed a 6,000-mile quest in order that he might hear the British nightingale in full song.

The quest must have cost thousands of dollars. It has meant much discomfort, traveling night and day by sea, air and road, but at the end, risking pneumonia by kneeling on the damp, dewy grass, he has fulfilled his long-postponed wish.

Far away in the fastness of a Surrey woodland the doctor heard the metallic "twee-tweet" of the nightingale. He must have been disappointed, for the nightingale has a rather harsh note at times and often drives distracted inhabitants of the lonely country houses here to shy shoes at the disturber of the night rather than listen reverently to it on bended knee as did Dr. Wood.

It is now dangerous to whisper the word nightingale in the ear of Dr. Casey Wood. It is true he came all the way to hear the songster, but he bitterly regrets ever spilling to the reporters the cause of his long journey. Since that date he has been besieged by well-meaning helpers who wanted to track their own particular nightingales for his benefit. Bird lovers from all corners of the Continent have been pestering him. They even inquired at the Embassy for him, and it was all too overpowering for him, so he had to move about incognito.

To the International News the doctor gave his impressions of the nightingale.

"The result was highly successful," he said. "Toward noon of a bright sunny day the first nightingale was encountered. His deep, sweet song was distinctly heard at intervals for over an hour. This demonstrated the falsity of the current belief that the bird only sings at night or in the gloaming."

"During the tramp over the beautiful downs in Surrey a dozen birds of the species were heard in full or partial song until hunger and the shades of night drove the explorer to rest."

Tuscora Investigation. The Tuscora was a grand jury has already commenced an investigation of the alleged irregularities in the organization and early business transactions of the Tuscora Rubber Co. of New Philadelphia which went into the receiver's hands on March 1, following the sale of over a million dollars' worth of stock.

The investigation, it was said, will consider the alleged acts of O. M. Dickinson and E. M. Blatz, former officers and promoters of the company.

Last Spoonful Same as the First

Calumet is made under such exacting conditions — packed in such a scientific manner, that its leavening strength and purity never vary. It retains its original strength for months after leaving the factories.

When you tip the can to get the last spoonful, you know your baking will turn out all right—the last spoonful is the same as the first. This uniform quality of is cause for its big demand. Housewives know they can depend upon the results obtained—that climatic conditions or temperature cannot deteriorate its positive leavening power.

When you buy baking powder remember these facts—that a uniform leavener means bakings that do not vary in quality—that Calumet is uniform.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a lb. when you want it.

MONTHLY LETTER OF RESERVE BANK HAS TONE OF OPTIMISM

Reports From All Over Fourth District Indicate Genuine Business Revival

BUSINESS ENTERING MANY NEW AVENUES

Rubber Slabs For Sidewalks and Pure Copper Shingles Among Latest Inventions

CLEVELAND, June 9.—Not since the beginning of the economic readjustment period have the replies of our correspondents been of such a hopeful, healthful, and cheerful tone. Even the most conservative and guarded ones break thru their shells of conservatism and speak as the relieved of a heavy burden.

By this we do not wish to be interpreted that we are entering an industrial millennium. What we do wish to say is that we are more firm than ever in the belief that business is entering a safe, sane, and constructive return to so-called normal. Doubtless there are those of our readers who, because they have not yet been permitted to see the vision, will think us unduly optimistic, but we do not have our thought on just one particular business—rather we are in the center of the industrial circle looking impartially in all directions toward the rim.

To support our contentions we are quoting below from a few of this month's reports:

The president of a large glass company of Pittsburgh says, "I have just returned from a tour of inspection of our factories which has taken me into several sections of our country. I was impressed not only with the actual improvement in business but with the most optimistic expressions of sentiment that I have heard for the past two years."

The president of a large Kentucky bank writes: "While there is no boom in business here, at the same time there is a steady, constant increase in volume which induces a feeling of happiness and contentment, and brings about a certain psychological condition of mind which is the full partner of confidence."

A well known business man of Cleveland says, "If it were not that I would appear unduly optimistic, I think the tone of my letter this month would be so different from those of the last eighteen months that you would think I had been indulging in some kind of forbidden fruit."

A vice president of a large Toledo bank remarks: "General business conditions have improved quite decidedly during the past month. So much so that some think the improvement is only temporary and cannot possibly hold up."

What are the causes for expressions such as those just quoted? To name only a few of many we find:

That, the Akron rubber plants are producing 85,000 tires daily. (110,000 was the peak in 1920.)

That, in Akron 72,000 men were needed to turn out the tires produced before the depression. Today 77 per cent of this former production is being turned out with 27,000 men.

That, the labor turnover for March, 1932 as reported by 80 Cleveland firms, showing a payroll of 11,459 employees, was but 6.65 per cent.

That, as compiled by Finance and Industry, eleven big electric companies report a heavier demand. The consumption of kilowatt hours is now being regarded as a most accurate and sensitive index of business conditions. The compilation shows that in April there was a weekly average of 42,200,000 kilowatt hours, this being only 400,000 under the peak production of October, 1920.

That, the month of April broke all previous records for the amount of construction started, according to the F. W. Dodge Company.

That, steel operations today are around 80 to 85 per cent of workable ingot production.

That, the agricultural outlook is most favorable. A joint estimate of the United States and Ohio Departments of Agriculture is that the wheat crop of Ohio will be 13,200,000 bushels greater than last year.

That, one of the world's largest paint companies reports an increased gallonage production of over 35 per cent in its house paint above the figures of 1920, and over 30 per cent above the gallonage of 1921.

That, one of the largest manufacturers of motor trucks reports orders for April exceeded those of April last year by 50 per cent.

That, there has been an increase in the Fourth Federal Reserve District in savings deposits of over 4 1/2 millions, and a like increase in commercial deposits, or a total of nearly 10 million dollars. This is the combined report of 85 selected member banks for the past 30 days ending May 10.

And thus we might continue. In reply to the question "What is your opinion with respect to the present situation of the extra manufacturing construction and other production facilities that took place during the war?" our correspondents gave some very interesting replies.

One correspondent said, "It is my opinion that this extra construction and additional production facilities have no more than offset the production lost thru the inefficiency of labor at that time." Another replied along a very similar line—"With a 25 per cent decrease in the number of employees, we have increased our production nearly 20 per cent. This merely convinces us that our war-time constructions would have been absolutely unnecessary with average efficiency among our help."

In the proper interpretation of these statements certain elements must be taken into consideration. The inefficiency did not entirely exist because of a "let down" on the part of the individual. Many of those skilled in their work entered service, and their places had to be filled by those less skilled.

The quotations here used indicate that there also existed inefficiency on the part of management. Both of these are now being corrected.

Another correspondent writes, "I think the extra manufacturing construction and production facilities that occurred during the war have been absorbed or are being used in some way to the extent of from 50 to 66 2/3 per cent. In many cases they have been used in a much different way than was anticipated."

This reply leads directly to another which cites some of the unusual ways in which this additional capacity is being diverted. One large copper company is now putting on the market a pure copper shingle for residential roofing. The roofing material at 100 square feet is said to compare favorably in price to other standard roofing materials.

Another incident is that of a manufacturing plant which produces twines and cordage. This plant is developing a series of colored twines, together with complete instructions for weaving them into floor coverings. Some rubber companies are said to be developing a type of slab rubber as a sidewalk material to replace concrete. A machine tool manufacturer converted his plant into the preparation of woods for decorative purposes. As necessity is the mother of invention, so is conversion of industrial "war babies" the necessity of solvency. And every day is bringing new and unusual methods of converting war-time expansion into productive channels.

"Don't Criticize Us"
PRESIDENT HARDING has seldom been less convincing than he was Saturday in his conversation with "callers at the White House." Cabinet members, he pointed out, cannot reply on the floor of congress to congressional critics. The President disagrees with most or all of these critics, and he thinks that the correspondents should not give much space to attacks made by them on his official family. He instances the Watson attack on Hoover as deserving far less news space than it has received.

Of course, Secretary Hoover in his capacity as an organizer, is the President's strongest evidence for the point he attempts to make. But even this evidence is worth little. Mr. Hoover has his faults and his virtues. He will be more watchful for being criticized, and if his record is a good one he can defend it effectively. The debates of congress are heard by the nation in the newspapers of the nation. President Harding knows that Mr. Hoover at any time can get as much space in reply to Senator Watson as he may desire, and that in the end he will be the gainer rather than the loser by such publicity.

But Secretary Hoover is only one member of the cabinet. The President wants "less sensationalism" with regard to all cabinet members. This, of course, is the dangerous and impossible aspect of his plea. Correspondents are to give the "soft pedal" on criticism of Mr. Daugherty as well as to criticism of Mr. Hoover. Mr. Daugherty recently made a similar plea himself. He wants to be judged by results. But Mr. Daugherty's case shows the necessity of criticizing the administration loudly. His sudden request for $500,000 and the organization of "the greatest law office ever organized in this or any other country" are apparently the direct results of persistent and indignant protest by senators, congressmen, and the press.

Mr. Daugherty has been the object of just such criticism as the President does not like, and that criticism has seemingly brot him to attempt his duty. Nor is there less need for it now that Mr. Daugherty is energetic where he was once inactive. If he is not under constant scrutiny few will be able to judge of these "results" he speaks of, and much worse, few will care what they are. Possibly the President has not realized this. One may be sure that men like Mr. Daugherty always do.

Tariff Futility
PUTTING it mildly the tariff mongers in the house and senate are receiving no encouragement the country over for the enactment of the McCumber-Fordney tariff bill. Thotful Republican leaders and many influential Republican papers are part and parcel of this opposition.

Conservative papers like The Indianapolis News have been outspoken for months in showing clearly and in detail the folly of congressional leaders merely to fulfill the campaign promises in riding roughshod over the sober business sense of the country as to tariff legislation. The Springfield Republican, The Boston Transcript, The New York Tribune, the latter two orthodox for generations in their support of basic Republican party principles, are a unit in expressing concern over this unfortunate stand of the party heads in both branches of congress.

In a recent issue The Indianapolis News says that no doubt it is "hopeless to expect men obsessed with a mistaken notion of party necessity to realize the futility of tariff legislation at this time; but it is encouraging to find that there are some eminent Republicans in the senate who have passed beyond Mr. Fordney's 1890 views, and not only understand that 1922 presents a world of materially changed conditions, but that no change is greater than this country's relation to the rest of the world. Conditions are admittedly unstable, and until there is an approach to stability, the making of any tariff that can adjust itself to the changes that must come in the stabilizing process is hopeless.

"Senator Watson saw the situation clearly thirteen months ago when he declared that any tariff enacted then would be obsolete in six months. Since then the situation has not improved or even changed in a way that would make present tariff legislation more lastingly effective. Mr. Watson has changed, but he has not improved, for he is now helping to urge tariff legislation at this session of Congress. Senator Borah has declared within the last week or two that he does "not believe it possible to make a tariff law of permanent worth at the present time." Even Senator Borah is sometimes right, and whether he is right or wrong, he has the courage of his convictions—which can not be said of all the senators.

"And now comes Senator Cummins, of Iowa, whose Republicanism none can challenge, and who stands in the front rank of Republican senatorial leaders. "I think," he declares, "that this is the most inopportune time of all the times I have ever known to enact a general revision of the tariff law. The time has not come for it. The information that is necessary is not at hand, and even if it were at hand at this moment, we could not depend on it as a basis for action tomorrow, or next month, or six months hence."

"The truth of the matter is that tariff legislation at this time is not only a bad national policy, but it is a bad party policy."

New York Day-By-Day

NEW YORK, June 8.—In the early morning line of them stand in waiting morning the East Side's push cart to deposit their meagre earnings in army winds its sluggish way thru an all night Bowery ten cent savings bank.

The picturesque little carts, topped by huge sun umbrellas, are filled with hot frankfurters, lemonade—2 cents a glass, chocolate bars, chewing gum and other staple gastronomic gimcracks. They cover certain routes every day.

On the sides of their carts are painted inscriptions: "George, the Greek," "Nick, the Busy Bee," "Pedro who loves America," "Buy from me!" and "I want to be a big American business man." It is a touch of America in the making for the push cart men of today are the East Side shopkeepers of tomorrow.

A few short steps from Forty Second Street on Fifth Avenue is one of New York's largest confectionary stores. It is owned by a Greek who five years ago sold ice cream bricks at the curb in front. His was the success of syndication. With his earnings he started others pushing carts and took a percentage of the earnings. The push cart man lived in abandoned slum cellars. PEOPLE'S FORUM

OPPOSES TAFT'S DECISION

Butler, Ohio, June 8, 1922.

The decision of Judge Taft, against the laborer and the farmer, is the outcome of 8 years' deliberation upon the part of organized capital to force the wage worker to eat out of the employers' hand, as Mr. Grace, of the Bethlehem Steel Co., publicly stated.

In 1920, it was considered that the farmer was actually prospering too greatly and that such prosperity was conducive of farm organizations and of better conditions for the farmer as a class, consequently credit was immediately refused, notwithstanding millions could have been furnished by the Federal Reserve and Farm Loan Banks designed for that purpose.

Upon other occasions the Federal Reserve took the initiative in printing millions of paper money (Certificates), but the object of the interlocking banks, in this case, was to contract and not advance money where it would sustain and stimulate business.

When the farmer is forced by poverty to relinquish his bond holdings at a discount; when he releases his grip on farm organizations and when organized labor, as a whole, yields likewise, then and only then will the capitalistic system recognize the farmer and laborer.

Of course this will mean a condition of serfdom for both farmer and laborer and if the condition is to be changed, men must be nominated and elected to state and federal offices pledged to bring relief.

The recent election in Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and in Iowa are a direct blow at the responsible parties and a continuation of such thot and action upon the part of the people will bring immediate relief to both farmer and laborer, the only way provided by the founders of our government.

EXPENSIVE FADS

Editor The Tribune:

So many fads have been introduced into the curriculum of our schools of late years that there is danger of the common branches being entirely crowded out to make room for these innovations. The three R's, once so popular in our common schools, have been crowded almost to the dim limbo of obscurity to make room for stylish and silly fads.

By far the most expensive and useless fad yet introduced is the swimming fad lately adopted by our board of education. Last fall a bond issue was authorized by the voters of the city for the building of a new building on East Chestnut-st., for an addition to the Central School building and for certain repairs. The voters will not get what they voted for. Instead they are to have a play house annexed to the Central school building, that will cost approximately $100,000.00.

Members of the board of education in their wisdom have decided that an $100,000.00 play house on Walnut-st is more important than a school building on East Chestnut; and that the east sliders must wait for the next bond issue before they can have adequate accommodations.

Those who have examined the plans for the so-called addition to the Central school building say that a swimming pool 80 ft. by 64 ft. is provided for, together with dressing rooms and a balcony for the spectators to watch the swimmers splash the aqua and incidentally study anatomy and hygiene.

The remainder of the building will consist of a gymnasium, dance hall and a few small rooms for bathing suits, powder puffs and the like. While our city has not money to pay the police and firemen, and the Public Library has to be kept going by popular subscriptions, the school board spends approximately $100,000.00 on fool fads. Is it any wonder that business men of the city put their money into non-taxable bonds? When will this nonsense stop? Whither are we drifting?

Another thing that is not easily understood by the common herd is how it happened that the board of education paid for certain real estate, an amount equal to five times the actual value of same. Possibly that is only another fad. Yes, the public is a donkey, all right.

THE DOVE OF PEACE

Oh, the dove is shot to pieces, and it wobbles as it flies, with its plumage all in creases and red pepper in its eyes; every day it's sorely jolted, and it looks about half mounded, and the olive branch it's bolted, and it sickens and it dies. For the nations lust for slaughter as they used to long ago; ah, poor dove! the captains swat her, hoping that the blood will flow; once again the sabre rattles and the hag of warfare tattles tales of sieges and of battles, armies oozing to and fro. There's a crisis every morning, and a threat of fire and sword; all the lessons men are scoring that late bloody days afford; every fifteen cent commander hopes to be an Alexander, and the dove looks like a gander that's been batted with a board. All the foreign states are busted, wenching on their wartime debts; tow if any would be trusted for a pair of cigars; yet their talk is all of drilling and of marching and of killing, blood of useful people spilling—shindys are their highest bids. And the cats of old Kilkenney feed themselves a false alarm; and the dove's not worth a penny, where it once was worth a farm; and the bug-house nations wrangle with an everlasting jangle, threatening to kill and mangle and to work all kinds of harm.

Novel Knitted Swimming Suit

Dame Fashion has been prompted in decreeing the simple and practical bathing suit by the fact that so many women, the country over, have become devotees of the art of swimming. Since the sport has become so popular, there is little room left for the cumbersome bathing outfit of yesterday. The comfortable form fitting suit, cut wide at the shoulder to insure freedom of arm movement, is the order of the day.

While the fashionable set experimented with bathing suits of woven materials, during the past Palm Beach season, this was but a flare of fashion, that soon gave way to the welcome return of the knitted suit. The non-clinging and non-chilling qualities of knitted material now leave the knitted bathing suit unchallenged in its field.

In addition to suits of one color, some of which bear embroidery varying from pure geometrical designs to conventional sea subjects, there are two-color effects. Here we have a most attractive example, made of pure worsted. The skirt is laced and allows for fullness. The upper part and the knickers are of a different color and may be had in cardinal, Kelly green or sand combination.

FLUFFY BUNNY GETS HIS OWN WAY

DOWN in a burrow under the big roots of the old oak tree there once lived a family of bunnies. There was Mama Bunny and her three little sons.

Gray-eye and Snooky were always ready to do anything to please their mama or their brother, Fluffy. Fluffy was as lazy as the day was long and never did anything for anyone if he could get out of it.

One day Mama Bunny took Fluffy with her to market and Gray-eye and Snooky were left at home, so they made up their minds they would have a good time.

"I know, Snooky, let's make a saw-saw," cried Gray-eye, and he began to hunt among the brushpile for a board.

He soon found one that would answer the purpose, and with Snooky's help pulled it out from under the pile.

"What can we put it over?" asked Snooky. "It has to be up on something high so it will teeter."

"Could we drag it over to the old fence yonder?" asked Gray-eye.

"So the farmer's boy can come and nio us? No, that would never do," replied Snooky. "Let's put it over that old stump."

"Just the very thing!" cried Gray-eye, and together they tried to drag the board over to the stump, but it was so heavy they had to rest several times before they reached the stump. They were just about to raise it up when Fluffy Bunny and Mama returned.

Gray-eye and Snooky both called to their brother and he came over.

"Here, give us a lift," Snooky cried.

but Fluffy Bunny refused to help. "Please, it's to be a teeter-totter," continued Snooky. "When it's up, we'll all take turns riding on it."

"You want me to get all dirty so I can't go to the meadow parade this afternoon," laughed Fluffy. "I'll play when it's ready, but I'll not help you put it up—so there!"

Then Fluffy backed away and sat down to watch his brothers, who at last got the board upon the stump.

Just as soon as it was in place, Fluffy Bunny came forward and pushed the first ride. One word brought on another until Mama Rabbit, hearing them quarrelling, came out to tell them that unless they were all good little bunnies she wouldn't take them to the parade.

"All right, then," said Snooky, "you and Fluffy can have the first ride. I can have the second ride," said Gray-eye.

Fluffy agreed, and he and Snooky got on the board as fast as they could. But when he found how nice it was, Fluffy refused to get off when his ride ended.

"But you promised," begged Gray-eye. Bunny was so used to having his own way that he didn't remember, so Snooky got off the board and Gray-eye took his place.

Everything was going nicely, when Mama Bunny called them. It was time to start for the meadow. Fluffy was high in the air and Gray-eye, without thinking, hopped off the board and landed right in the centre of a big mud puddle.

Gray-eye was terribly sorry for his thoughtlessness, and helped Fluffy up. But, my goodness, his pretty suit was a sight and Mama Rabbit for the moment—she had been listening to the whole thing and felt that Fluffy deserved what he got—told him he couldn't go until he cleaned his suit.

Gray-eye wanted to stay and help him, but Mama Rabbit wouldn't let him, and the selfish, lazy Fluffy had to remain at home while Gray-eye and Snooky went to the parade. When they once more got to the meadow, they found Fluffy ready to play and, for a wonder, ready to take his turn like the rest.

Included in the party were: Miss Janet Ogle, Miss Eva Shrimplin, Miss Hazel Randles, Miss Maxine Cummings, James Johnson, Bernard Elter, Carl Thompson, Maurice Kent, Thaddeus and Kenneth Ogle, Dale Hoffelinger, Warren Cummings and John Powell.

Miss Marjorie Lear has returned to her home, 128 south Sixth-st., to spend the summer months, after attending Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, for the past year.

CONGRESSMAN KNIGHT FILES PETITION AND ANNOUNCES PLATFORM

AKRON, June 9.—Congressman Charles Landon Knight, of the 14th congressional district today weighed in as a candidate for Governor of Ohio, according to announcement received from Columbus. This action followed the declaration last night by Governor Harry L. Davis, that he would not seek a second term.

Knight's platform includes: I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Ohio. I have no solemn platform to offer. However, here is a brief outline of some of the things I shall attempt to do if elected:

1.—A genuine house cleaning at Columbus.

2.—State business and private profits constitute a dangerous association of ideas. If I am elected I promise the political bosses of both parties who have fattened on this kind of thing, at least two lean and mournful years.

3.—To use all the power at my command to give the public Utilities Commission a permanent vacation and to return the power now exercised by it to the Cities in accordance with the spirit and meaning of the Constitution.

4.—To abolish every Board and Commission in the State with a few exceptions, cut out the frills they are wearing at the Tax Payers expense, and return the delegated power they are using to the source where it was reposed by the Constitution, thus simplifying government and saving to the state the salaries of innumerable and unnecessary employees, inspectors, surveyors and uplifters.

5.—To eliminate fads and theoretical experiments and increase the funds for general welfare work along the lines that experience has shown to be necessary, sound and practical.

6.—The loss from conflicts between labor and capital constitutes a serious indictment of our civilization. In my humble opinion these might be lessened in Ohio by a Labor Court with power to adjudicate differences over wages, contracts and working conditions where both parties to any dispute are willing to submit to its jurisdiction.

7.—To enforce all laws and provide a jail sentence for the violation of the Prohibition Statutes of the State.

8.—To limit the expenditures of all candidates for office to a small amount which shall not be increased by dividing up the so called expenses among clubs, organizations or persons and making it a felony to exceed that amount.

9.—Taxation in Ohio is increasing at a rate that is alarming. It is threatening our credit, impairing our prosperity and is stifling agriculture and business. No system can cure the ravages of extravagance, and so long as Government itself is not willing to inaugurate economies and to abide by sound principles of business it is useless to talk of reforms. My position is well known on the necessity of Government itself beginning the reform. However, Ohio should adopt a system of taxation based upon the earning power of property rather than upon physical assets themselves. Property held for investment or that has value and yet earns nothing, as well as money in banks, bonds, and securities not paying dividends, might be capitalized at their true value and taxed upon a basis ranging from an assessed earning of from six to ten per cent.

The idea is complicated and made difficult by the power of the Federal Government now remorselessly used to tax the property of all persons in the State. This source of revenue should be reserved for the State itself, and until it is done we shall be hard pressed to raise funds for our local needs, while the Government at Washington, exhilarated by the knowledge of the inexhaustible reservoir from which it may draw, will proceed to enlarge Federal activities, thus placing a premium upon extravagance.

If I am elected Governor of Ohio, I shall call a convention of the Governors of the States for the purpose of having before them the advisability of concerted action to restore to the States those necessary sovereign powers of internal regulation which they have surrendered to the Federal Government and the further invasion of which is threatening to reduce the States to mere geological units.

In 1912 I was a follower of the Progressive Banner in Ohio. I stand now where I stood then and those ideals are still my ideals.

I shall not attempt to buy the Governorship of Ohio nor will I follow my friends to do it for me. I have no organization and I refuse to allow the money to be spent to build one.

BASEBALL Red Sea Sunday 3 p. m. vs COSHOCTON

A SPECIAL
GUARANTEED
ATTRACTION

FAST SPRINGFIELD TEAM TO PLAY AT RED SEA SUNDAY

The Springfield Reds, said to be the fastest baseball aggregation in that city, are expected to make their first appearance on the Red Sea diamond Sunday afternoon. This attraction at Red Sea park Sunday is guaranteed by the local management.

The Springfield outfit has a record of winning five games with one defeat, a percentage of .833. According to C. C. Jackson, manager of the team, Springfield holds the record of being the fastest traveling club in this state outside the leagues.

On Thursday evening, June 15, the Regulars will cross bats with the well known Massillon Agathon aggregation. This is another guaranteed attraction.

The Springfield lineup is as follows: A. Hennig, ss; Miller, 1b; Snyder, 3b; C. Wolbut, lf; Shank, 2b; Bauer, rf; Lubbers, cf; W. Walbut, c; Locke or Jackson, p and John and W. Hennig, utility men.

MINNEAPOLIS ASS'N TEAM HAS NOT BEEN BLANKED SINCE '20

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 9.—Baseball fans here are convinced to-day that the Minneapolis Millers, at present leading the field in the American Association pennant race, has established a record that never has been duplicated in organized baseball. The Millers have won 228 consecutive contests without suffering the ignominy of a shut-out. The records fail to show any similar performance in the history of the game. On September 20, 1920, Ben Tincup, pitching for Louisville shut out the Millers, while the Colonels were making 13 runs. Since that time, thru the finish of the 1920 season thru all the 1921 season and thus far in 1922, Joe Cantillon's club has scored one or more runs in every contest played.

FRAT LEAGUE BRIEFS

Bob Wiggins is eligible to pitch for the Knights of Pythias in the League as long as he does not twirl for the Coshocton Regulars. Fraternal League managers voted unanimously for Wiggins Thursday night.

The K. of C.'s are allowed to choose three players outside of the Fraternal League to play with them in order to strengthen the team, according to a decision made last evening at the managers' meeting.

It is not likely that Leo Unger will go to the K. of C.'s in order to strengthen that club.

All lodges were represented at last night's meeting with the exception of the K. of C.'s.

There will be no scheduled Fraternal League games at Red Sea park during the week of July 4.

The Red Men personnel may include Shortstop Hendry of the Regulars before the week of the Fourth, it has been learned.

"Doc" Sondles is eligible now to play ball with the Moose club. The Moose will be greatly strengthened with the "doctor." The Moose baseball team is expected to give a benefit dance at Fairlawn park on Friday night, June 16, it was announced Friday.

The Knights of Pythias management has released two players from the roster and have added to the team two more fast players. The Knights are planning on redeeming themselves in Monday evening's game with the Elks.

The Elks will have their complete team on the diamond in Monday evening's game with the K. of P.'s. In their last game with the K. of C.'s some players did not show up and substitutions had to be made in the team.

The Eagles are planning on making a great showing in their next scheduled game with the K. of C.'s. These two teams battle at Red Sea on Wednesday evening instead of Thursday evening as per schedule on account of the Coshocton Agathon-Massillon Agathon game.

WOMAN TRAPSHOOTER BREAKS 97 OUT OF 100 TARGETS AT AKRON

AKRON, June 9.—Mrs. C. B. Pike, of Pittsburgh, won all honors in the Ohio Trap shooters association tournament yesterday when she smashed 97 out of a possible 100 at the Meadowbrook Gun Club grounds. She tied with S. L. Jenny, of Chicago, and three shoot-offs will be required to decide the winner of the Arcade Trophy. In the third shoot-off Mrs. Pike tied and lost by two points. She was awarded the Akron Hotel Cup.

In the handicap event M. S. Hootman, of Hicksville, former champion of Ohio, tied with M. S. Roberts. In the shoot-off Hootman won the championship medal and the A. T. A. Medal.

John R. Taylor, of Newark, Ohio, won the professional title in the handicap, breaking 96 out of a possible 100 at 22 yards.

STATE FAIR BOARD TO CENSOR SHOWS; URGE ADVERTISING

COLUMBUS, June 9.—A law requiring the state board of agriculture to censor entertainments and license concessionaries who operate among the county fairs, is to be asked of the next session of the state legislature by members of the Ohio Fair Boards association. The association at its closing session here placed approval on newspaper advertising, advocating wider usage of this field. Traffic problems and the question of handling crowds were also discussed. Ohio fairs last year attracted over 2,700,000 paying visitors, according to M. Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, president of the association.

Sport Chatter

Base, the well known Ruth, first announced that he had no chance to equal or better his home run record this year. Then went to the plate in the first inning and nudged his fourth homer of the season beyond the right field bleachers. Incidentally the clout came at the expense of "no hit" Robertson and the Yanks beat the White Sox for the third time, 7 to 2.

The rampant Reds again ran riot over the Dodgers, growing their albatross Dutch leather in a very unclubby manner. He was rushed off the premises in less than three innings and the Reds won, going away, 7 to 2. It was Leathers' first defeat in nine starts and his second of the season.

The Pirates got to Ring and Singleton for sixteen hits and managed to outlast the Phillies once more, 7 to 5. Coming from behind in the late innings, the Senators made it three straight from the Indians. Zachary pitched well for the winners and Bluege, a recruit third baseman, started the natives with a series of nefarious stops.

In the words of the old song, "Everybody's doing it now" leading off in the first inning, Pep Young, of the Athletics hit his first home run of his major league career. However, this didn't prevent the Athletics' defense from kicking away another game to the Tigers, 7 to 6.

Geal Canry, reported to have been sold to Memphis, relieved the wavering Barnes in the second inning, after the Cubs had scored four runs, and held the visitors safe thereafter, the Giants winning 11 to 5. Aldridge weakened in the late innings.

Elmer Smith repeated his world's series trick of hitting a homer with the bases filled and the Red Sox beat the Browns 7 to 5.

The Cardinals finally stopped the headlong Braves. Bill Doak holding the Boston entry to four hits, three of which were of rather suspicious lineage. Score 5 to 1. The defeat stopped the Braves after they had won six straight and marked the Cards' first victory over Mitchell's crew this season.

Jimmy Dunn Dies

CLEVELAND, June 9.—James G. Dunn, president of the Cleveland baseball club, died at his home in Chicago at six o'clock this morning, according to a message received by officials of the club here.

The Fraternal League schedule for next week is:

The Inter-Church League schedule for next week is:

TRAP SHOOTERS ELECT OFFICERS

AKRON, June 9.—Columbus was awarded the next year's annual meeting of the Ohio Trap shooters league at the annual session held here last night. Officers elected were: R. R. Dickey, Dayton, president; A. E. Carpenter, Columbus, vice-president; D. R. Eaton, Cincinnati, secretary treasurer.

Perfect weather greeted the 125 shooters at Meadowbrook, Wednesday and high scores were the result. A. E. Kroehle, of Cleveland, broke the 150 sixteen-yard target event without a hobble, winning the Tris Speaker cup. C. D. Coburn, of Mechanicsburg, and Frank Hughes, of Moberg, S. D., divided second place honors, each breaking 148.

HINDU LOVER WILL FIGURE IN TANGLE IN DIVORCE COURT

CHICAGO, June 9.—Hindu love affairs which are alleged to have intrigued the heart of Mrs. Samuel H. Kuttner, wife of a wealthy Lombard, Illinois, contractor were revealed today in letters in which Mr. Kuttner will file in court as a part of his reply to the bill of divorce which his wife has filed against him. Kuttner's reply and the letters will set forth an alleged romance between Mrs. Kuttner and Sri Jopham Mesro, a Brahmin who is twenty years her junior.

"The celestial law must unfold in its slow but sure majestic mystery," says one of the letters which Kuttner alleges were written to his wife by Mesro. "There is a great awakening in the heart of the universe and how the heart-beats dance with the majestic primal rhythm of all being. You know now, dearest one, all realization must follow the great awakening that has come over your noble life."

Elsewhere in the correspondence Mesro is alleged to have addressed Mrs. Kuttner as "his dearest queen" and to have sent her a crushed and faded rose with the following comment:

"Silent like this rose and abiding like the stars above, are the messages of love and hope that fell to earth this morn'."

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS
Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

The Hint of the Menace Madge's Father Disclosed.

STEP carefully," Lillian admonished in a whisper as we neared the little log in the old corridor behind which lay the library door. "Let me guide you."

She grasped me firmly by the arm and stopped me just before we reached the door.

"Lift each foot before you set it down as if you were stepping over an obstruction about a foot high and six inches wide," she directed. "There, that's it. All right, Allen," as Mr. Drake noisily swung open the library door. "We're here, and the mine is laid. Now we'll get down to business, and wait until our little submarine strikes it."

Allen Drake and my father were standing with grave faces just inside the door of the library. In my father's hand was a book, one of a cherished set of his favorite essays which had been privately bound for him. He evidently had just finished turning the leaves and his voice was grave, as he looked toward me and spoke pithily.

"There can be no mistake, daughter. I fastened a memorandum carefully between these two pages, so that only design, not carelessness, could remove it. And it is gone!"

"You mean," I said slowly, "that Katie must have taken it?"

"Unless some person from outside the house had access to this room," he returned. "Besides, it was nothing any person would have taken unless he—or she—was a significant person—'had been directed just where to look.'"

"I Had Forgotten!"

I felt suddenly chilly, as if some evil, not fully known, were threatening me. I knew Katie's monkey-like curiosity, but I would have staked my soul upon her absolute loyalty to me and mine. But the three faces around me were stern and set.

Indeed, I fancied that there was a look of something very akin to horror in both Lillian's face and that of Allen Drake, as they gazed at my father, an expression so foreign to their usual inscrutable faces, that I feared something vague, terrifying, of unusual importance, was attached to this memorandum.

"Chief," Allen Drake began hastily, "pardon me if I'm wrong, but it can't be that—the missing paper concerns the thing we were talking about—"

"Yes, my boy," my father replied gravely. "It did concern that. Indeed."

He stopped as he saw my puzzled, stricken eyes, and came toward me, slipping his arm around me.

"I had forgotten, daughter," he said, "that all this must be Greek to you, and partly to Mrs. Underwood also, although I think she knows something about what I've been trying to do. But I shall not keep you in ignorance longer, although I have not yet completed the thing on which I have been working."

What Madge Feared.

He drew me to a chair near the fire and motioned the others to seats, and I held my breath as one upon the brink of a tremendous revelation.

"Just a minute, Mr. Spencer," Lillian interrupted. "I want to be very sure of something first."

She went to the door, opened it cautiously, went down the corridor to the stairway, returned and closed the door. As she did so, I again heard just that faintest suspicion of a tinkle and caught in Allen Drake's eyes a glance of amusement at my bewilderment.

In a second I was hotly resentful. The air was full of some sinister menace, and yet he, in his cocksure aloofness, could spare time for a smile. "All right," Lillian reported laconically, and my father began speaking.

I cannot, of course, reveal all that he told us in his low monotone voice, but long before he had finished, I felt as if I had been held below water for a long time and was gasping for breath, so momentous was the secret which he was revealing to me. That parts of his story were as new even to Allen Drake as they were to me, I saw clearly. And when he had done, I realized that my father, whom we all had thought had seen his best years of usefulness, had evolved something of the most tremendous mode of no account to his country at all, should its secret fall into alien hands.

The significance of the missing memorandum came to me in a blinding flash. He had told Allen Drake that it concerned his work. And it was gone. And Katie—

With a little half-hysterical cry, I crossed the room to my father and threw myself into his arms.

"Don't tell me that my keeping Katie as a maid is to blame for this, Father!" I sobbed. "I—I can't bear it!"

Advice to Girls
By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 18 years of age. I was keeping company with a young man three years my senior. My girl friend was always interfering when he called on me. We never had a chance to speak confidentially, such as one is sometimes inclined to do. It seemed that she was always in the way. He often told me of this, as he didn't like it either. I spoke to her about it, but it didn't seem to affect her at all.

I parted with him several weeks ago. I have met a young chap now whom I care for a great deal. He is from out-of-town, and calls on me every Sunday. My girl friend still insists upon intruding and often acts very rudely toward me. I am greatly annoyed by this, and would appreciate your advice.

BOBBY.

BOBBY: There are times, my dear, when you have to be very frank even with good friends. Tell your friend kindly but firmly that when you have callers you prefer to entertain them alone unless you invite her to join you. If she is the right sort of girl she will not resent this, and will appreciate your being honest with her rather than resorting to hints.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

There's a young man three years my senior, and I care for him as I have never cared for any one before. He used to take me to dances and parties, and also told me he cared for me. We live quite a distance apart, and I very seldom get to see him any more. He didn't seem to mind the distance at one time. But that is his excuse at present. I've tried in vain to forget him, but this is one thing that seems impossible. Whenever he comes to our town he insists on taking me home.

Now, please, Annie Laurie, advise me what to do.

MISERY.

MISERY: Go about with all of your young friends and fill your mind with so many interesting things that you will not have time to think so much of this young man. You can find lots of happiness if you try, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 19, and am engaged to a young man three years my senior. I have given my promise to marry him, but do not love him. I am in love with another young man, and he says he loves me. Should I break the engagement and marry the man I love or must I marry the one I am engaged to? WORRIED.

WORRIED: In a kind and straightforward way tell your fiancé that you have made a mistake and do not love him. Say that you would like him for a friend, but can hold no other feeling toward him. This is the only way that is fair to him and to yourself. It is wrong to marry a man you do not love.

Then, when you have broken your engagement you can consider the other young man. But make sure that you are in love this time before you make any promises, my dear.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper, and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

FAMOUS "WITS" OF HISTORY
Little Stories of Men and Women Whose Sayings Are Still Remembered
By MARK STUYVESANT

How Rachel Won the Russian Courtiers.

WIT was not the least of the qualities of Elizabeth Felix, which helped her to rise from the obscure surroundings in which she was born to the prominent position that hers at her death, and in which her memory is still held, as the greatest mistress of the century just past. For this little girl, born of Alsatian pedlars, was "Rachel," beloved by many of the greatest tragediennes of history.

Rachel was conscious of her shortcomings when it came to education, and great trouble in writing a proper letter. But the charm and wit which she put into her letters made up for her lack of elegance of style and even grammatical accuracy.

This great woman often laughed at her deficiencies as is shown by a witty part of a queen to herself as she was entertained by the royal family.

Many entertainments were given in honor of her, and her acting was given great enthusiasm. Her success was equal to that of her triumph in England.

The night before Rachel's departure from Russia a grand reception was given in honor of the great actress who had won every one who had met her. All of the young nobles were at her feet.

During the evening, some of the diplomats present were discussing the possibility of a war between France and Russia. Rachel was keenly interested.

When one of the young nobles who had been particularly taken with Rachel's charm was saying good-by to her, he said:

"We will not say 'good-by,' but 'au revoir.'"

Mademoiselle, We hope soon to see you in the capital of France and to drink your health in its excellent wine."

Rachel smiled, as she replied:

"I am afraid, Monsieur, that France will not be rich enough to afford champagne for all of her petitioners."

Rachel was about the last person to leave the Russian frontier before war was declared between the two countries.

"Mademoiselle, You Have Saved the French Language!"

answer which she gave to Count Moie. This gentleman, wishing to pay Rachel a compliment, said in his most gallant manner:

"Mademoiselle, you have saved the French language from the hosts of barbarians who endeavor to destroy it."

The fascinating Rachel smiled and replied:

"Monsieur, that is more wonderful, seeing that I never knew it."

Rachel was not only the idol of Paris, but when she went to London she was the sensation of the season. The Russian court, the Emperor of Russia sent her a special invitation to act before him in St. Petersburg.

Rachel's letters to her mother, in which she describes her entrance to the Russian court, are very amusing. She describes how she really played the

Rachel smiled, as she replied:

"I am afraid, Monsieur, that France will not be rich enough to afford champagne for all of her petitioners."

HOME-MAKING HELPS
By WANDA BARTON

Is Your Small Daughter a Doll's Dressmaker?

THE families today who happen to be possessors of an old-fashioned sampler regard it as one of their most treasured possessions. It may have been made by a grandmother, great-aunt, maiden aunt, cousin several times removed, or even by the mother of the present generation, which makes it still more precious. Possibly it was not time that faded some of the stitches to their dull hue—it may be that a tear of the little sewer, who wished to play instead of making a masterpiece for posterity, dropped on it, or perhaps frequent picking-out to make the pattern more perfect, rubbed off the dye. At all events, the discipline involved in the process of the sewing reared fine, sturdy women—capable mothers, and rarely capable grandmothers. Where are the samplers of this generation?

The present generation is one not of sewers, but of reapers of the efforts of machine-workers. The revival of handwork during the war threatened to be lasting, but even knitters are neglecting their needles, and sewing is fast losing popularity. Ready-mades are good to look at, so why bother to sew?

There is one revival, however, which promises to hold the attention of little girls and train their abilities along dressmaking lines, and that is making doll-clothes. There are sets of garments already cut out, ready to fit and sew, which may be had at moderate prices, and paper patterns are cut to measure just like those used for grown-ups' clothing, from which may be cut up-to-date garments for all kinds of dolls. Gone are the days when dolls came completely dressed and had to remain so to the end of the chapter, to the distress of their small mothers.

Some of the character dolls are so appropriately dressed that it is hard to think of redressing them for fear of destroying their individuality. Yet, even character dolls get dirty, and here is where the doll's dresser makes up her thinking-cap. Of course, Katrina or Gretchen cannot be dressed in American clothes, so the new garments must be made after the pattern of her old clothes.

Shoes, stockings, a few pieces of underwear, a variety of hats, a few parasols, several kinds of natural hair wigs, mock jewels and toilet accessories for fashionable dolls may be purchased ready-made, but doll's dresses are amazingly scarce in large toy centers, so there is nothing for small mothers to do but turn doll dressmakers. The cut-out garments arrived at just the opportune time, and many a clever young designer may find her inspiration from perfecting these wee garments, and thus prepare for her future career.

The latest paper dolls come provided with a couple of dress changes, but the bottom of the box are sheets of most fascinating paper, trimming-strips and patterns, so there is work for the young designer in another branch of doll dressmaking with scissors and paste as her tools instead of needles and thread.

In doll-sewing, the little dressmaker has every branch of the work to master, just as a real dressmaker has in her profession. She also learns how to make lingerie. The desire to dress and undress the doll at will leads to the difficult task of making buttonholes, and here is the mother's opportunity to teach her young daughter the ins and outs of sewing, a gift which will be invaluable to her in after-life. She will thus learn in fun what may serve as a means to a profession or livelihood in later life. This is much more valuable than learning to make a sampler—an occupation of totally-wasted effort except to create an heirloom.

Many a rich woman has said: "If mother had taught me to shop and sew how much better I could have dressed and managed on my income!" The woman who does not know is always getting cheated, and never looks her best, no matter how much money she may spend on her wardrobe.

We never can tell to what station in life our daughters may be called, but if we have taught them all the practical, womanly accomplishments, we need not worry about their ability to "hold their own." It is only when we have neglected our opportunities to teach them that we need worry.

Encourage your small daughters to cook, and show them how; let them make dolls' dressmakers, take an interest in their work, and teach them how to sew. An education acquired in this way is a life-long benefit.

YOUR HEALTH

Why It Really Is Wise to Fast at Many a Banquet

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

DURING the winter season many a person in the great cities attends one or two banquets each week. If he does not attend a banquet he goes to a formal dinner or two. At the banquet six or eight courses are served. The competing hotels strive to excel in the tempting and lavish dishes presented to the guests.

Most affairs of this type are scheduled to begin at 7 o'clock. You hurry home from business or rush through your household affairs, get into your evening clothes, nearly break a blood-vessel in your haste to get to the appointed place, arrive there fifteen minutes late and then have to wait an hour before every one sits down to eat.

By this time you are famished and have not character enough left to refuse a single course. You crowd your stomach with all sorts of foods, sit in a room clouded with tobacco smoke, stay up long past your usual hour for bed, and get up the next day feeling that your body is the remnant of a misspent life.

Food Excesses Harmful.

The healthy individual can withstand the effects of a reasonable number of such experiences, but it must be said that the habitual dinner-out is taking chances with his health.

I would not have any one lead a life of austerity, but reasonable care must be exercised if you are to live to a ripe old age.

A powerful constitution will endure all such attacks against the foundations of health, but the wise man will exercise great care in this matter.

Excesses in eating are frequently the result of excessive hunger. The best arrangement of the meal hours is to have them so timed that the demands of the stomach are satisfied before the appeal has been continued so long as to become clamorous.

The organs of the body having to do with digestion, assimilation and excretion of food, and food wastes, are regulated to a certain daily capacity. These organs are choked and interfered with in their action by an over-demand, just as a machine or an engine is interfered with under similar conditions.

I have a sawmill in the country. It is operated by a gasoline engine. It possesses a certain capacity for work. If too large a log is placed on the carriage, or if the timber is fed in too rapidly the saw slows up and may come to a full stop.

The organs of the body when called upon unduly, slow up in their action, and may even refuse to function at all.

Simplicity Would Help.

To me it is a matter of daily amazement that many men and women treat their bodies with infinitely less care than they do their automobiles or their sewing machines. If a truckman abused his horse the way many men abuse their stomachs the truckman would be arrested by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, he would be taken to court and fined perhaps a thousand dollars.

I believe in banquets and social dinners. It is a good thing to bring together a group of persons. We should get better acquainted with each other, and the breaking of bread tends to sociability.

I must say, however, that the average banquet is a culinary riot. It results in harm to the human body. Any one of us can stand a few, but to indulge too frequently in such feasts of social dissipation must produce permanent physical harm.

Let us demand greater simplicity in these matters, and even though we pay the same price for the ticket of admission we will lengthen our lives by eating less of the rich foods of the groaning banquet tables.

Diary of a Fashion Model
By GRACE THORNCIFFE

She Describes a Charming Frock Suitable for the Day's Outing.

THE girls at Madame's have been organizing Sunday expeditions to the country.

"It helps me to keep a fresh viewpoint all week!" Pam exclaimed.

"I don't believe I could go through the summer without these week-ends," I declared. "At least, if I did I wouldn't have as happy a frame of mind about it."

"Yes," agreed Pam. "Now that the warm weather is here I have to see the green grass and trees occasionally to keep physically refreshed and mentally at par."

"Where shall we go this week?" asked Veronica, joining the conversation.

"I have just the place in mind," Pam suggested.

"Out with it," urged Veronica. "I want to know where we're going so I can plan what to wear."

"It's a big, old empty house over on the Jersey side," Pam explained. "I know the people who own it, but they haven't lived there for three years. They said we could borrow it any time."

"What's the attraction about an empty house?" asked the critical Veronica.

"Oh, you'll see when you get there," Pam assured her. "The chief attractions are a huge, rolling lawn and an overgrown flower garden."

"Good," exclaimed Veronica, who always has a practical eye to clothes. "It's the kind of place where my new linen outfit will be just the thing."

"What new linen outfit?" I asked.

"My dear, haven't you seen me spending idle moments poking a black-threaded needle into bits of orange material?" she asked.

"Was that a dress?" I asked by way of reply.

"It was the collar and cuffs of the smartest little linen frock you ever saw," she boasted.

"Well, draw it for me," I suggested. "I want to make something attractive for those days in the country, too."

"So many of the new frocks have the set-in belt effect," mused Veronica, outlining the belt on the figure she had drawn with black overcasting stitches. "Your idea of having the black ribbon through embroidered eyelets is very smart," I approved.

"What do you think of the buttons?" she asked.

"They're very effective," I said. "They don't really button anything, do they?"

"No, the frock slips on over the head," she answered. "But buttons are so smart for trimming I had to string them down the back. You see, there are eyelets in front, and a black ribbon laces through them."

"That explains all," I said with an approving nod. "I was wondering how you got your head through that small neck opening."

"You'll like this hat," was Pam's answer. "I copied it from a blue-checked gingham hat I saw in a shop window."

"I like the droop of the brim," I said, following the sweep of her pencil as she sketched in its outlines.

"You should admire this cross-stitch pattern," replied Veronica. "I spent weary minutes with my nose flattened against the shop window drawing it off on a bit of paper."

"I may copy it with more ease next Sunday in the country," I threatened.

MEDINA, June 9—G. B. Williams, one of a party of three men and a woman in an auto which cut up several lawns was fined $25 on a charge of driving an auto while intoxicated. The other two men and the woman were freed.

ATHENS, June 9—The many church people of Athens county have joined together in a ministerial alliance. The purpose of the organization is to promote harmony among the many and varied religious denominations of the district.

MCARTHUR, June 9—It is reliably reported here that the state game and fish department is considering the establishment of a wild game refuge in the Richland Furnace district. This is an old iron furnace abandoned many years ago. Its thousands of acres of land form a veritable wilderness through which only the most experienced woodsmen can pass and would be a safe haven for game of any sort.

LOGAN, June 9—The old court house here which is being dismantled was sold to a Nelsonville man for the sum of $500. He made the only offer for the old structure which is to be replaced by a new one. The furnishings and fixtures of the building sold for the sum of $50.

NELSONVILLE, June 9—The city of Nelsonville will save a lot of money next year on its fuel bill. A contract has been made with a local mine for coal during the coming year at $2.30 per ton. Last year it cost $3. There were a number of bids this year and none of them ran over $2.90. Nelsonville is in the heart of the mining field.

BUCKEYE, June 9—Lawrence Pickle, aged 39, who was ground to pieces under the engine of a short line train north of Bucyrus Sunday morning, was identified by means of a county license tag attached to the collar of a water spaniel dog he was leading, whose back was broken by the train. Pickle's body was so badly ground up that it was impossible to recognize him, but the county license tag attached to the dog's collar which had been issued to Pickle's sister, Mrs. Bertha Chapman, was traced through the auditor's office and established the dead man's identity. The reason the dog was not killed was because the animal attempted to pull his dead master from in front of the approaching train.

POWHATAN, June 9—Yeggs entered the store of A. L. Vandyna here and at the point of a revolver forced him to surrender $800, the day's receipts.

Cambridge, Ohio. "As I look back I wonder how much sickness I could have avoided, had I known of and taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription when I first showed signs of nervousness and a decline in strength. I was willing to try anything that was suggested to me and did try many things, but none seemed to reach the seat of the trouble or do me any good. At last I heard of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, when my condition was very low, and its tonic strengthening effect was felt before the first bottle was entirely used. My increased strength and cheerfulness of spirit, I attributed to it, until I had used six bottles. When then, I had no need for it to use it further. As I was a well woman," Mrs. E. A. BRITISH AVERSE TO IRISH PROPOSAL OF STATUS LIKE CUBA'S

LONDON, June 9.—Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, Hugh Kennedy, legal adviser of the Irish provisional government, at Dublin, and Kevin O'Higgins, of the Dail cabinet, have proposed to the British signatories of the Anglo-Irish peace treaty that the Irish Free State be granted a constitution similar to that of Cuba. It was learned this afternoon. The suggestion was made that the future status of Ireland towards Great Britain should be similar to that of Cuba towards the United States.

The chief business of the Anglo-Irish conference today was to discuss the legal aspects of the proposed Irish constitution. When the conference gathered it was regarded as most unlikely that the Cuban suggestion would get official sanction. The cabinet already has made known its attitude of full relationship of Ireland and Britain and it has announced that Britain will go no further than she has in creating the Free State.

If the Irish were given a constitution with such latitude as that of Cuba, Ireland would have more political liberty than any other British dominion.

DAVIS URGES TERM OF GOVERNOR MADE 4 YEARS IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, June 9.—Announcing his final determination not to be a candidate for renomination, Governor Davis has issued a statement urging that the Ohio constitution be amended so as to make the term of a governor four years, instead of two as is now the case, and that no governor be permitted to serve more than one term.

Expressing his "unbounded faith in the Republican party and the principles on which it stands," Gov. Davis did not endorse the candidacy of any particular contestant for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. He said he has confidence that the choice of the voters of Ohio at the forthcoming primaries and election "from among the various candidates to succeed me will be a careful and wise choice."

In his statement the governor reviewed his administration, paying special attention to the Dinn emergency act, providing for reorganization of the state departments. He said that operation of this new law has effected a saving annually of $5,500,000. He declared that, due to absence of deficit in the state legislature next winter, for the first time in years, will not have to pass a deficiency appropriation bill.

Cerelia Sweets

It Pays To Please Your Cows

A Mature Elopement

By CLARA DELAFIELD

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"Amanda's hard," said Mary Tyrrell. "She's as hard as nails. And she's been watching us like a lynx ever since we got to know each other so well."

"No worse than Bob," said Frank Arnold. "That boy's got eyes in the back of his head. He watches me like a bob-cat."

"It's hard that our own children should turn against us," sighed Mary. "I suppose they think we're a pair of old fools who can't be trusted."

It certainly was hard on their romance. Mary was two years younger than Frank, and Frank was—well, of that indeterminate age when the hair is as much white as black and the tailor sighs reproachfully when he passes the tape-measure round you. They had been sweethearts in youth, had drifted apart, and each had married and been left alone. Now, with a grown-up son and daughter, they found themselves neighbors in the little town.

Bob Arnold and Amanda Tyrrell were engaged to be married. Bob had a fine position, and it was only a matter of a few weeks till the ceremony. And the old people, fearing the loneliness that would follow, had found consolation in each other's society.

"Mary, I've got a scheme," said Frank one day. "Let's—let's get married too!"

"Frank!" she was staggered by the proposal. "You mustn't joke about that. Those memories are too—too sacred."

"I mean it, darling. Why shouldn't we have a little happiness in our old age? After all, we've always cared for each other, haven't we?"

It took a long time to persuade her. It was not that Mary Tyrrell had ceased to care. She had loved Frank ever since their meeting with all the ardor of their youth. But she had grown "settled."

Frank did persuade her. And it was a difficult courtship that was carried on under the eyes of the young couple. They feared their children's opposition intensely. A dozen times Mary declared that she dared not do it, when Frank hit on a plan.

"What if you say to an elopement, darling? Remember how we'd planned to elope in the old days?"

"Frank, I—I couldn't. It would be improper, at our age! Besides—"

"Leave it to me," said Frank. "A week later he came to her again. 'Come along, Mary! It's all ready. The judge will fix it for us as soon as we can get to his house.'"

"Frank, don't be absurd! Why, I—I'm not dressed, and there's the pudding to make, and—"

"And Bob and Amanda on their way up the hill. It's now or never, mother!"

Somehow—Mary never knew how afterward—she persuaded her. And at the back of the house, not near enough to arouse suspicion, the buggy was waiting. Frank helped her in and took up the reins.

Half an hour later they emerged from the judge's house, man and wife. Judge Engrew had chuckled and beamed, and seemed to be enjoying the joke immensely.

"I guess there'll be surprises when you get home," he said.

"I guess there will," said Mary mournfully.

All the way home her despondency increased. In spite of her husband's protestations.

"Amanda will never forgive me, and Bob won't forgive you," she said. "If that young scoundrel tries any of his tricks on me, I'll break his teeth!"

"I'll let him know I'm his father," said Mary, as he kissed her.

"A couple of old fools we are," said Mary, as he kissed her.

At the door, waiting for them, were Amanda and Bob. Mary descended with trembling limbs and turned to her husband.

"You tell them, Frank," she said. "Well, you see, folks, it being a fine day, we thought we'd go buggy-riding, as usual."

"Hope you enjoyed your-elves," answered Amanda.

"I thought you might like to know, mother, that that cake you were making burned to a cinder in the oven."

Mary ran forward impetuously, but Frank checked her.

"See here, folks," he said, "you may as well know we've just got married. And we aren't going to stand for any nonsense, either."

And he awaited the storm with folded arms. But before any one could speak Mary came rushing back in wild excitement.

"Frank! Come in and see!" she cried.

The table was loaded with a wedding feast. There were four places, and the roast ham sent forth a delicious appetizing odor.

"What—what?" stammered Frank. "Your wedding breakfast, Dad," said Bob.

"How do you know?"

"Judge Engrew tipped us off. You see, we'd been hoping for it. Only if we'd encouraged you you wouldn't have been so keen."

They stared at each other. "I guess that's what the judge meant by his surprises," murmured Mary.

"No, Amanda and I got married half an hour before you did. That's the surprise, Bob chuckled.

ated that this farm was benefited by the improvement as much as any of the farms mentioned in the six petitions which have been filed this week. The assessments on the six farms average from $10 to $15 an acre. All of the trouble arises from the low tax duplicate of Coshocton and its great amount of road mileage, it was explained by J. E. Lyons, county auditor, Friday. In the number of miles of road, Coshocton stands eighth in the state, while it is way down the line in the amount of its tax duplicate. The state highway department is urging the construction of the inter-county highway for state travel. In order that Coshocton might carry its share it was necessary to place a great part of the cost on property owners adjoining the improvement. In the case of the road south of town, 25 per cent of the road was assessed against the townships and 25 per cent against the property owners. To get the 25 per cent from the property owners, land lying within one mile of each side of the road was assessed. The mile radius was divided into quarters, four-tenths of the assessment being placed against the land in the first quarter, three-tenths against that in the second quarter, two-tenths against that in the third and one-tenth against that in the fourth. From this division and the value of the property, the rate of taxation was determined. The law provides that the county commissioners may, considering the benefits derived, assess any amount up to one-third the value of the property assessed. The county auditor states that none of the assessments have exceeded one-third of the value of the property. In the hearing of the Duncan case last week, the common pleas court held that the assessment was in excess of the benefits derived from the improvement. In another case, filed by Thomas Humrickhouse, whose land lies across the road from the improved road, the court held that the owner was not benefited, and denied the commissioners the right to assess the property for the improvement of the road. If the assessments are reduced by the court, upon hearing the cases, the difference will be paid out of the general fund of the county.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF RADIO URGED
BY REP. WHITE
WASHINGTON, June 9. — Federal control of the air to prevent radio congestion and to encourage the maximum of radio use and efficiency was proposed in a bill introduced in the house today by Representative White, Republican, of Maine. The bill embodies much of the report endorsed by Secretary Hoover's recent radio conference and reposes broad authority in the president and the secretary of commerce to regulate air usages. Federal control over radio communication between the several states and with foreign countries is asserted and a license from the secretary of commerce is required to carry on such communications. The bill seeks to control sending stations only. The receiving set and operators are not affected. The bill sets up about 20 different classes of stations with appropriate wave allocations.

BILL TO REDUCE POSTAGE ON NEWS IS FILED FRIDAY
WASHINGTON, June 9. — Reduction of second class postage rates was proposed in a bill introduced in the house today by Representative Kelly, Republican, of Pennsylvania. The bill is intended to give relief to newspapers and magazines which have made representations to congress that the continuation of high postal rates seriously affected the entire publishing industry. The Kelly bill would repeal the last two of the four increases in postal rates, which were made under the war revenue law of 1917.

Knight, Akron, Representative R. B. Beetham, Cadiz, speaker of the Ohio house of representatives, Daniel W. Williams, Jackson, and J. W. Durnell, Columbus. Representative Beetham's declaration was filed by R. M. Black, of Harrison co, who said: "Mr. Beetham has no Columbus organization and no paid workers.
